

cccl_area

Location: planning\cccl_area.shp

Description

This layer represents the coastal construction control line (CCCL) at a 1:24,000-scale as of January 1, 2000 in Bay County. This layer has polygon features.

The CCCL is a line of jurisdiction, defining the landward limit of the Florida Dept of Environmental Protection (FDEP)'s authority to regulate coastal construction. Areas within 1500 ft of the surveyed CCCL require professional design, per new Florida Building Code effective January 1, 2002.

For a line version including the coastal set-back line (CSBL), see cccl.shp.

Source

In August-September of 2001, Bay County GIS retrieved a statewide CCCL layer from FDEP Office of Beaches and Coastal Systems website (MyFlorida.com > Environment > Download > Beach & Coastal > About Beaches & Coastal Data > GIS Data). The retrieved layer had line features based on surveys, studies, and management evaluations of conditions along the coast on a 1:24,000 scale shoreline coverage. For more details, see FDEP metadata at bottom of cccl.doc. Bay County GIS staff projected and selected lines for Bay County.

Bay County GIS staff combined CCCL (not CSBL) line features with the county boundary, creating polygon topology.
